Cycle city. The New York City bike share established itself in its inaugural year.

Citi Bike is all grown up.

The ambitious system, operated by NYC Bike Share, turns 1 on Tuesday.

While questions remain about the bike share's future expansion and funding, Citi Bike still has much to celebrate. Since launching with 6,000 bikes on May 27, 2013, Citi Bike has stacked up an impressive number of riders and trips within the 332-station system.

From the number of reported crashes to the total miles traveled, here's how Citi Bike did after one year:

NYPD traffic crackdown targets drivers

The police crackdown will last for a week. / GETTY IMAGES

The New York City Police Department is embarking on its third publicly announced initiative to enforce traffic laws around the boroughs.

Starting on Monday, police began to track moving violations within 21 specific precincts across the city.

The effort is scheduled to end June 1.

The crackdown is tied to Mayor Bill de Blasio's broader Vision Zero campaign, which is meant to drive down and eliminate pedestrian deaths and injuries.

Over the last two weeks, the NYPD has also announced enforcement efforts related to speeding — yielding more than 5,000 summonses — as well as cell phone use while driving and failure to yield to pedestrians — resulting in more than 4,800 summonses.

Bronx. Teenager who threw deadly blow turns self in to cops

A 19-year-old man faces a misdemeanor assault charge after he slapped a European tourist who later died in front of a Bronx bodega on Friday.

Cops said that Brownie Lopez walked into the 48th Precinct station house over the weekend after surveillance video showed him striking Oliver D'Orio, an Italian-born tourist who was to fly home to Switzerland on Saturday.

Video showed Lopez and D'Orio in front of Guerrero Deli Grocery Corp. on Washington Avenue in Belmont early Friday. Multiple reports said that D'Orio, 37, was asking customers at the bodega to buy him beer — including Lopez.

After a tense exchange between the two men, D'Orio goes off screen, takes off his shirt and again approaches Lopez, who responded by landing a single open-faced strike with his right hand.

D'Orio fell back on the ground and never got back up.

Police found him on the sidewalk unconscious and unresponsive with head trauma. EMS rushed the man to Saint Barnabas Hospital where he was declared dead.

Altercation

Oliver D'Orio, 37, an Italian-born tourist, died on Friday when he hit his head on the ground after reportedly being struck by Brownie Lopez, 19.

- D'Orio was declared dead at Saint Barnabas Hospital.
- Lopez turned himself in at the 48th Precinct.

Fallen remembered during ceremony

Mayor Bill de Blasio and Admiral Bill Gortney of U.S. Fleet Command participated in a wreath laying ceremony at the Intrepid Sea, Air & Space Museum on Memorial Day. Wreaths were laid to honor the veterans of various U.S. wars. He also spoke of his father, who was a World War II veteran. A 100 foot long flag was also unfurled as part of the celebration. This was the Mayor's first Memorial Day as the leader of the city. / GETTY IMAGES

Jazz great

Miles Day honored on the Upper West Side

Legendary jazz musician Miles Davis was remembered on Memorial Day when the city unveiled Miles Davis Way on the corner of 77th Street and West End Avenue. Davis lived on the Upper West Side block for almost 25 years.

Hundreds of people turned out to take part in the festivities. Members of Miles Davis' family participated in the celebration and jazz musicians came to commemorate the event. A street sign was hung up to usher in the name change.

Miles Davis would have turned 88 on Monday.

A block party in the area where he lived followed the celebration.

Say cheese. Selfie helps police locate teen iPhone thieves

A single selfie sent to a victim's mother's phone led to the arrest of two Brooklyn teens over the weekend after police circulated the photo of the suspects in connection to an iPhone robbery.

Cops said the teens swiped another teenage boy's iPhone on April 17 at 11:30 p.m. while at a venue on 48th Street in Hell's Kitchen that was hosting an 18-and-under DJ party at the time.

Khayyam Alexander, 16, turned himself over to authorities on Saturday after police publicly released the selfie — a snapshot of the two teens with broad smiles as they rode the subway away from the Manhattan venue.

Investigators said that Fethi Nekrouf, 18, was arrested on Sunday, although the circumstances of the arrest were not immediately clear.

However, both teens face charges of petit larceny and of criminal possession of stolen property.

New Staten Island theme park to open

One of the park's featured rides is the Verrazano Viper. / FACEBOOK

Rides. The Fantasy Shore Amusement Park will feature NYC-themed rides.

Just as the city's beaches and pools open up in time for summer, Staten Island's first amusement park in years makes its full debut this weekend.

Located along the Franklin D. Roosevelt Boardwalk and Beach near the intersection of Father Capodanno Boulevard and Seaview Avenue, the Fantasy Shore Amusement Park is designed for families and will feature at least four borough-themed rides in its early days.

Kids up to 12 years old will be able to ride the Verrazano Viper, Midland Beach Proto, Tea Side Sea Cups and Staten Island Railroad, with more attractions later in the summer.

The rides and park will be operated by NY Carousel, the same group behind the Fantasy Forest in Queens' Flushing Meadows Park.

The amusement park was announced as a possible 12-year agreement with the New York City Park's Department to keep it there long term as a means to drive residents to the public beach.

While prices for the individual rides haven't be confirmed, admission to the park will be free.

Big launch

The park is scheduled to be open every weekend until June 26, when it will be open every day through Labor Day.

Victim's father blames government 'idiots' as town mourns killings

Grief. Those killed were all students at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

With a California town grieving the deaths of six college students killed by a mentally ill man, one victim's father on Monday blamed the killings on politicians who failed to tighten gun laws after a mass school shooting in Newtown, Connecticut.

Richard Martinez, whose son Christopher Michael-Martinez, 20, was gunned down on Friday night in Isla Vista, California, said similar rampages would continue until lawmakers took action on gun control.

"We're all proud to be Americans. But what kind of message does it send to the world when we have such a rudderless bunch of idiots in government?" Martinez said on CNN.

Elliot Rodger, 22, the son of a Hollywood director, fatally stabbed three people in his apartment before shooting three people dead near the University of California at Santa Barbara.

He then shot himself. All of those killed were students at the school.

Michael-Martinez, described by his father as articulate and tough, was shot inside a deli. He was the last in the killing spree to die.

"These people are getting rich sitting in Congress. And what do they do? They don't take care of our kids," he said.

Legislation after Sandy Hook to extend background checks for gun sales, ban assault weapons and limit magazines' capacities failed to clear the Senate in April 2013. Gun-rights advocates strongly opposed the measures. REUTERS

"I can't tell you how angry I am. It's just awful, and no parent should have to go through this." Martinez

Martinez said his son died because Congress had failed to act after a mentally ill gunman killed 26 people in December 2012 at Sandy Hook Elementary School in Newtown, Connecticut.

Shooting spree

Senator to renew gun control push

Sen. Richard Blumenthal said on Sunday he wanted to revive gun control legislation rejected by Congress in the wake of the 2012 Newtown, Connecticut, school massacre, saying it could have helped prevent this weekend's deadly California shooting spree.

Blumenthal, a Democrat from Connecticut, said on CBS's "Face the Nation" program that the legislation, which failed last year, could be revised to emphasize the mental condition of potential gun buyers.

"Obviously, not every kind of gun violence is going to be prevented by laws out of Washington," he said.

"But at least we can make a start, and I am going to urge that we bring back those bills, maybe reconfigure them, center on mental health, which is a point where we can agree that we need more resources to make the country healthier and to make sure that these kinds of horrific, insane, mad occurrences are stopped.

"And the Congress will be complicit if we fail in that," he said. REUTERS

China report slams US for 'unscrupulous' surveillance practice

China last week summoned the U.S. Ambassador to China, Max Baucus, to protest against the U.S. indictment, saying it had seriously harmed relations. / COLOURBOX

Widespread. "U.S. spying operations penetrate every corner of China," the report said.

Beijing accused the United States on Monday of "unscrupulous" cyber surveillance that included large-scale computer attacks against the Chinese government and Chinese companies.

The report, titled "America's Global Surveillance Record," was published one week after the United States accused five Chinese military officers of hacking into U.S. companies to steal trade secrets.

The publication accused the United States of "waging large-scale cyber-attacks" against China. "Targets of American surveillance include the Chinese government and Chinese leaders, Chinese companies, scientific research institutes, ordinary netizens and a large number of cell phone users," the report said.

Huawei Technologies Co., the Ministry of Commerce, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and Tencent Holdings Ltd.'s popular instant message service were among NSA targets, it said.

The Cyber Space academy report cited foreign newspaper reports of U.S. cyber spying based on documents revealed by former NSA contractor Edward Snowden.

A subsequent investigation "carried out by various Chinese government departments over several months confirmed the existence of snooping activities directed against China," the report said. REUTERS

Quoted

"America's spying operations have gone far beyond the legal rationale of 'anti-terrorism' and have exposed the ugly face of its pursuit of self-interest in complete disregard for moral integrity."

Salt. Pregnant women should take iodide supplement, docs say

Pregnant women should take an iodide-containing supplement to protect the brain development of their babies, according to the leading U.S. group of pediatricians.

Iodine, which the body can get from iodide, is needed to make the thyroid hormones that are required for children's brain development before and after birth.

The recommendations were published in the journal Pediatrics on Monday.

People typically get the iodine they need from table salt, which in the U.S. is fortified with iodide. Eating processed foods exposes Americans to salt that is not iodized, however.

Past research has suggested about one-third of pregnant women in the U.S. are marginally iodine deficient, the group said. REUTERS

Crisis. Ukraine launches attack, leader won't talk with 'terrorists'

Ukraine launched air strikes and a paratrooper assault against pro-Russian rebels who seized an airport on Monday, as its newly elected leader rejected any talks with "terrorists" and said a robust military campaign in the east should be able to put down a separatist revolt in "a matter of hours."

Ukrainians rallied overwhelmingly in Sunday's election behind Petro Poroshenko, a political veteran and billionaire owner of chocolate factories, hoping the burly 48-year-old can rescue the nation from the brink of bankruptcy, civil war and dismemberment by its former Soviet masters in the Kremlin.

Monday's rapid military response to separatists who seized the airport in Donetsk was a defiant answer to Moscow, which said it was ready for dialogue with Poroshenko but demanded he first scale back the armed forces' in the east. REUTERS

Experts split on Jewish Museum killer

The shooting of three people at Brussels' Jewish Museum was probably a "terrorist attack," Belgian officials said on Monday, though some security experts suggested it may have been the work of a hitman rather than an anti-Semitic "lone wolf."

An Israeli couple and a French woman were killed in the shooting on Saturday. A Belgian man remains hospitalized in critical condition. The gunman was still on the run late Monday.

Police released a video clip from the museum's security cameras showing a man wearing a dark cap, sunglasses and a blue jacket enter the building, take a Kalashnikov rifle out of a bag, and shoot into a room, before calmly walking out. REUTERS

Five dead as Sierra Leone records first Ebola outbreak

Five people have died in Sierra Leone's first confirmed outbreak of Ebola virus, the World Health Organization (WHO) said on Monday, signaling a new expansion of the disease which regional officials said had been brought under control.

Ebola, a hemorrhagic fever with a fatality rate of up to 90 percent, is believed to have killed some 185 people in neighboring Guinea and Liberia since March in the first deadly appearance of the disease in West Africa.

Previously, several suspected cases of Ebola were recorded in Sierra Leone early on in the West African outbreak, but they later tested negative for the disease. REUTERS

Clean air. China to scrap millions of cars in anti-pollution initiative

China plans to take more than 5 million aging vehicles off the roads this year in a bid to improve air quality, with 330,000 cars set to be decommissioned in Beijing alone, the government said in a policy document published on Monday.

Pollution has emerged as an urgent priority for China's leaders as they try to reverse the damage done by decades of breakneck growth and head off public anger about the sorry state of the nation's air, water and soil.

A BOY IN BEIJING DURING A SMOG ALERT /GETTY IMAGES

In a wide-ranging action plan to cut emissions over the next two years, China's cabinet, the State Council, said the country had already fallen behind in its pollution targets over the 2011-2013 period.

As many as 5.33 million "yellow label" vehicles that fail to meet Chinese fuel standards will be "eliminated" this year, the document said. As well as the 330,000 cars in Beijing, 660,000 will be withdrawn from the surrounding province of Hebei, home to seven of China's smoggiest cities in 2013. REUTERS

Work life. How two married artists afford living in the city

What's your primary job?
I'm an import specialist for Customs & Border Protection. ... I have to make sure everything has the right paperwork and meets regulation. Most importantly, I collect revenue. So part of what I do is collect the taxes and duty for items coming in. … I started working there 19 years ago when I was 20. They were recruiting at my college and I thought the money was pretty darn good!

You also act on the side. What was your first audition?
I've always loved acting, but when I came to America from Nigeria in 1995, I wasn't thinking about it. I'm very African in the way I think: I need to know where my paycheck is coming from. But if you really love something, it never goes away. I used to read Backstage magazine and would see the auditions, but I would talk myself out of going because I had an accent and was curvy. One day, I saw there were auditions for a play set in Nigeria and I thought, "Now that I can do!" I came in with a fake résumé, a Glamour Shots photo and a monologue that I hadn't memorized. They looked at me like I was crazy, but I got the part!

How do you go on auditions and work on projects while working full time?
Where there's a will, there's a way. I go to auditions on my lunch break or near the end of the day. That's the great thing about being an actor in New York; you can walk to auditions. I save my vacation time to take a week or two off to work on something. I sacrifice that for my passion. Often I do projects on the weekend.

Does your husband work?
He's a musician. He was a teacher until 2010, then he decided to pursue music full time. So I work the 9-to-5 and do my art on the side and he does his art full time. We make it work together. It's a beautiful quilt.

Still in PAIN?

Do you experience:
❒ pain that is sharp, jabbing, or burning
❒ itching or numbness near the shingles area
❒ skin sensitivity ❒ loss of sleep due to the pain

If it has been 9 months or more since the skin rash appeared and you are still in pain, you may be suffering from Postherpetic Neuralgia or PHN. PHN occurs as a result of damage to the nerves during a shingles outbreak. If you are between 18-80 years old, you may be eligible to participate in our research study, which includes investigational medication for PHN pain, at no cost to you. TIPS FROM EMPLOYERS FOR THE CLASS OF 2014

With a few million students graduating this month, there's even more competition for jobs. The good news is that college hiring has increased by 7.8 percent relative to 2014, reports the National Association of Colleges and Employers. Still, it's very competitive, and graduates have to work to stand out.

In a new study in partnership with Beyond.com, Millenial Branding found that 73 percent of hiring managers felt that colleges are only "somewhat preparing" students for the working world. Therefore, it's on the students to figure out the best ways to win the recruiting game.

Here are three tips based on the findings:

A positive attitude and good teamwork skills are key to landing that all-important first job. / FUSE

Choose a company based on culture

Companies are now hiring for cultural fit over all other qualifications because personality is a leading indicator for how productive and successful they will be on the job. Almost half of HR professionals surveyed said that cultural fit was the most important factor when deciding who to hire.

Develop soft skills

The top three attributes that companies are currently looking for are: a positive attitude (84 percent), communication skills (83 percent) and an ability to work on a team (74 percent). To improve your attitude, choose the right company instead of applying to random jobs. Also, put the smartphone down and engage.

Tip

Don't major in liberal arts

The most disappointing finding in our study was that only 2 percent of companies are actively recruiting liberal arts majors versus 27 percent for engineering and 18 percent for business. Almost half of all professionals surveyed said that they believe there are "no jobs" for liberal arts grads. If you majored in liberal arts, you should start reading business books, taking business classes and get a mentor to fill in the gap.

Prep for the SAT from the comfort of your own phone

Test prep is going digital with these new apps. / WAVEBREAK MEDIA

Study tips. High schoolers are utilizing apps to get ready for standardized tests.

Put away your flash cards — a new crop of mobile apps is putting a 21st century twist on studying for the SAT.

Until recently, the basics of standardized test preparation have been the same for generations: Get a bunch of review books, maybe take a prep course, and then sharpen your pencils and dive into a pile of practice tests.

But Mark Anestis is one of many educators and app developers who is working to change that. For 15 years, Anestis has been running The Learning Edge, a Connecticut-based tutoring company, and has created two study apps to help students tackle the sometimes daunting exams.

"My philosophy with test prep is that it's important that the kids enjoy what they are doing while doing it," explains Anestis.

The longtime tutor describes the SAT and ACT as "game-like" tests and encourages his students to take a strategic approach to the exams.

That philosophy led to SATLadder. Anestis says he was inspired by games like Words With Friends, which allow players to compete against each other, and by the fact that many of his students were seemingly glued to their smartphones.

"Back in 1999, when I got started, [SAT prep] was all out of a book," he says. "The reality is that these kids are mobile. They spend a lot of time in the car going to activities and are always on the move."

Vocabulary builder

Study those words

Anestis has also developed an app that focuses solely on the vocabulary section of the SAT.

The Daily Word ($2.99) is exactly what its title suggests: It will notify students each morning of the vocabulary word of the day.

"The hardest part of studying for the SAT is learning all of the vocabulary," Anestis notes.

Here's how the free game works: Students have the option of playing either head-to-head or in solo mode. Each round consists of one SAT question. The game not only judges whether players get the question right, but also how long it takes for them. "The way you get better at this test is practice, practice, practice," says Anestis. "It's crucial because you learn from your mistakes." Every question comes with a detailed answer key, so students can review.

High schoolers looking for other apps with which to study for the SAT and ACT have other options as well. The College Board also has a free SAT Question of the Day app that uses real SAT questions and provides students with hints and detailed explanations.

Anestis says that over the years he's learned that there is a fairly even split between whether students need to focus their energy more on the math or verbal section.

"Every student has a different need," he says.

Money. As tuition continues to rise, grandparents come to the rescue

Americans are expected not only to pay the daily bills and save for retirement but also put away enough for college for their kids, a task that's increasingly difficult. So who is coming to the rescue? Grandparents. But families have to be smart about planning.

Some grandparents are beginning to put aside college funds as soon as their grandchildren are born. / AMANA IMAGES

Think about financial-aid

The more assets available to a student, the higher the expected family contribution. A grandparent-owned 529 savings plan would be considered income during that year.

Start small, and stay consistent

Think about how much to contribute each year. "If you start too high...that could become a big financial burden," says grandmother Maureen Reiter. REUTERS

Tip

Consider other ways to contribute

Grandparents can also simply direct cash into an existing parent-owned account.

The process is simple: Get a contribution form from the 529-plan provider, fill in basic information such as account number and the names of the account owner and beneficiary, and send in a check. Keep in mind that third-party contributions may not be tax-deductible.

Emma Watson, Brown grad

First Hogwarts, now college. "Harry Potter" star Emma Watson has officially graduated from Brown University, receiving a bachelor's degree in English. The 24-year-old British actress tweeted a photo of herself in her cap and gown, ready to receive her degree, with an attached caption of just a single exclamation point.

Christina Ricci expecting

Christina Ricci is going to be a mom. The "Addams Family" star is expecting her first child with husband James Heerdegen, she confirmed to Entertainment Tonight. The two met while making the short-lived TV series "Pan Am" in 2012 and tied the knot in October 2013 in a private ceremony in New York City. Ricci has done a remarkable job of keeping the pregnancy quiet; when she finally stepped out at LAX this weekend with her baby bump, she was pretty far along.

What you need to know about Kimye's Italian wedding

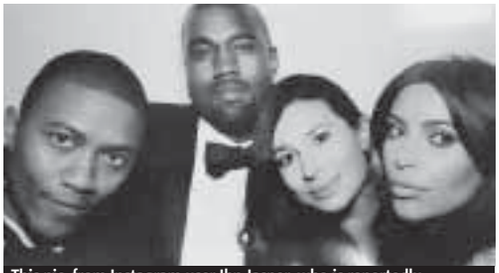
The world's most-talked-about couple are now the world's most-talked-about married couple. Kim Kardashian and Kanye West were married over the weekend in a lavish ceremony that seemed second only to royalty. Don't let Kris Jenner hear us say that! Here is the lowdown on the high-society event.

The dress

Kim's gorgeous gown, designed by Givenchy creative director Riccardo Tisci, featured handmade lace work that reached down her arms with sheer paneling covering her back, reports say. A long silk veil, smooth hair worn down and a simple bouquet completed the look.

The guests

Select invitees were treated to a rehearsal dinner and gardens tour at Palace of Versailles in France then flown to Florence, Italy, for the nuptials and reception at Forte di Belvedere. Guests throughout the weekend included John Legend and Chrissy Teigen, Jaden Smith, "Girls Gone Wild" creator Joe Francis, designer Alexander Wang and more.



This pic, from Instagram user Ibn Jasper, who is reportedly Kanye West's barber, was hash tagged #family. / INSTAGRAM

Giancarlo Giammetti posted this pic from the rehearsal dinner. /INSTAGRAM

The music

Kanye surprised Kim at their pre-wedding celebration at Versailles with a live performance by one of Kim's favorite singers, Lana Del Rey. John Legend and Italian opera singer Andrea Bocelli sang at the reception. Rumor has it that Kanye joined Big Sean on the mic, too.

The honeymoon

Where does the couple who have been everywhere go on their honeymoon? Reports say the post-wedding getaway will be short since they're due in Prague for Kanye's stylist's wedding next weekend. Rumor has it the newlyweds landed in Cork, Ireland, on Sunday and are staying at the five-star Castlemartyr Resort in East Cork.

The drama

Little brother Rob Kardashian allegedly flew home before the wedding for fear that the camera would add 10 more unwanted pounds. Kim's bro was seen at LAX flying in from Europe BEFORE the big day. Reports also say that youngest sister Kylie Jenner, 16, was making out with Jaden Smith, 15, during the reception while Legend's romantic ballad "All of Me" played.

The unexpected ‘blessings’ of family

See more at www.metro.us

Fiction. Author Elise Juska reveals how art imitated life in her book.

Families, with their complex relationships, forced love and enduring bonds, make for good stories. And Elise Juska’s novel, “The Blessings,” is exactly that.

“The Blessings” centers on a big Irish-Catholic family living in northeast Philadelphia. At the center of this dynamic family is a man named John Blessing, who dies. Each family member — from his wife to his daughter to his parents — deals with his death in different ways, which the book gracefully explores.

“I come from a close Irish-Catholic family, and we had two uncles who died [young],” Juska tells us, calling from her native Philadelphia. “They were the core of my family for so long, so this was not a scenario I was unfamiliar with. It’s something I’ve tried to write about many times. This was my way of telling that story.”

Juska says there are certain aspects of the book that were directly inspired by her own family, even if she didn’t realize it while she was writing. It comes across in the mannerisms of the grandmother, or a certain family tradition. However, she says, “The truest part is the reaction to loss and the really long effect of that loss.”

“There’s been a lot of early feedback from readers saying there should be a sequel. That would be a great excuse to go back to the characters and see where they end up. I’m curious about the next generation.” Juska

While she was writing the book, her grandmother died, adding another layer of real-life grief to the fictional grief Juska was exploring. Despite the heaviness of the topic, she loved immersing herself in the Blessings’ world, and though the book has been published, she’s not quite done with them yet. “I really love these people. I hadn’t truly thought about writing about them again, but there’s been a lot of early feedback from readers saying there should be a sequel. That would be a great excuse to go back to the characters and see where they end up. I’m curious about the next generation. It’s possible.”

Cher Lloyd throws the party of the year

Want U Back.

After an extended absence, the singer returns and says, "Sorry I'm Late."

Two years ago, Cher Lloyd released a single that was a definite contender for Song of the Summer called "Want U Back." Don't remember it? That's OK. It was 2012, the summer of "Call Me Maybe," "Somebody That I Used to Know" and "Starships."

Lloyd, who first came to prominence in her homeland in 2010 after making it to the top four in the British version of "The X Factor," has had an eventful few years. After releasing her debut, "Sticks & Stones" on Simon Cowell's label, she had a falling out with the entertainment mogul, with whom she disagreed about her musical direction. It has been so long since the world has heard a full-length album from her, Lloyd decided to title her brand-new release, "Sorry I'm Late."

"In one sense, I'm glad that we have waited, because I feel so good about everything right now," says the singer in a chipper British accent. (She will turn 21 next month, by the way.)

"The main thing for me is that I have grown as a person," she continues. "Before, it was all similar sounds, and very pop and very young as well, and now I feel like I'm at the point where I'm able to express myself in a completely different way."

The recent video for her "Sirens" single is definitely a different way of expressing herself. It features a tearful Lloyd singing in the kitchen as the DEA barges in and arrests the bad boys who are involved in some nondescript illegal narcotic activity in her dining room.

"It's not necessarily bubblegum pop," says the singer about the new material. When talking further about the different sound, Lloyd says she credits the change to her increased involvement in making "Sorry I'm Late."

"Every song on this album was picked by me, not by guys in suits," she says.

When we ask Lloyd if her song, "M.F.P.O.T.Y." (it stands for Mother F—ing Party Of The Year) is a contender for this year's Song of the Summer, she is humble.

"I'm not sure," she says. "I'm the type of artist that lets something go and do its own thing because I know my fans are really passionate. And it will possibly be their song for the summer."

CHER LLOYD APPEARS ON NBC'S "TODAY" SHOW TODAY.

'A butt and a rack'

Lloyd's single "I Wish," which came out last fall, features T.I. and functioned as a bridge of sorts to prepare fans for her new material. There's a line in the song that we couldn't help but ask her about: "I wish I woke up with a butt and a rack."

"Doesn't every young girl wish for that? ... Of course they do," she says. "That song for me was basically me revealing myself and saying I do wish for the things that I can't have, and I think that's relatable."

Strange Talk's album "Cast Away" is available now on iTunes. / GETTY IMAGES

Get to know this band: Strange Talk

Aussie invasion. Singer Stephen Docker shares a little bit of strange talk about porn stars, Snapchat and Michael Jackson.

Forget the British Invasion. These days, it's Australian and New Zealand-based artists who are taking over the U.S. While Lorde, Iggy Azalea and 5 Seconds of Summer top the pop charts, alternative synth-pop band Strange Talk is what the cool kids are listening to. Get to know them here before checking them out tonight.

Basically everyone with Snapchat has heard your single, "Young Hearts" since it was used to introduce Snapchat Text. Do you use the app?
Yeah, we use Snapchat. We spend so much time together on the road that the four of us don't generally Snapchat each other, but we mainly use it to send snaps to our friends and family back home while on tour.

What's the strangest conversation you've had with someone in a bar?
One time we were talking [with various people] about occupations and one of us actually met a porn star!

What's the first CD you ever bought?
Michael Jackson's "History."

What are the biggest influences on the band's sound?
Our sound is influenced by all the music we're listening to at present and throughout our lives. We incorporate many of these influences into our music, which informs our sound. That's what's so great about being creative; there aren't really any boundaries [constricting what you can do].

What's your favorite song to perform?
"Eskimo Boy."

Is this your first time in New York City? What do you want to do when you're here? Do you go out after your shows?
This is our fourth time [coming] to New York City. We absolutely love it here. New York City is definitely one city [where] we're always keen to find a bar and unwind after a show.

'X-Men' uses super powers against Godzilla

The "X-Men" mutant superheroes smashed into U.S. and Canadian theaters and collected $90.7 million in ticket sales through Sunday, keeping monster hit "Godzilla" at bay and grabbing a decisive win over a long holiday weekend.

JENNIFER LAWRENCE PLAYS MYSTIQUE IN "X-MEN: DAYS OF FUTURE PAST." / MURRAY CLOSE

Fortune reported that "X-Men: Days of Future Past" brought in $111 million by the end of the holiday. Last week's winner, "Godzilla," dropped to second place with a total that Box Office Mojo reported reached $39 million yesterday.

Romantic comedy "Blended" claimed the No. 3 spot, taking in a reported total of $18 million through yesterday.

Small pleasures

Montpelier, Vermont

With a population of about 8,000, Montpelier is the nation's smallest state capital, but it makes up for its diminutive size with its independent spirit and rustic charm. This is a great city to sample New England specialties: Try the maple syrup at Morse Farm Maple Sugarworks, cheese at Cabot Creamery and whatever's on the menu at the New England Culinary Institute.

Portsmouth has grown into a cosmopolitan city, with boutique shopping, outdoor events and a vibrant food scene. / GETTY IMAGES

New England. Summer is the season to take in everything the region is known for in these five cities.

As summer approaches, sleepy towns across New England begin to wake up from winter hibernation. With flowers in bloom and leafy trees covering the mountains, summer is the best season to visit New England (and the only time to enjoy its pristine beaches) for biking, sailing and enjoying the delicious seafood New England is known for. Here are five of the most scenic small cities and towns for summer fun, food, history and culture.

Newport, Rhode Island

Gilded Age tycoons flocked to the charming seaside city of Newport to build their summer "cottages" at the turn of the century. Early examples of these homes — such as Isaac Bell's shingled house — actually resemble cottages. With the arrival of the Vanderbilts came opulent mansions modeled on European palaces. Though the mansions are Newport's claim to fame, there's plenty to do in this historic city.

Lenox, Massachusetts

Home to the Tanglewood music festival, Lenox exudes mountain charm unique to the Berkshires. Winding roads twist and turn, enveloped by verdant canopies that open onto spectacular views of the rolling valleys dotted by farmhouses. The main attraction in Lenox is The Mount, Edith Wharton's country estate, built in 1902. Three acres of formal gardens complement the home, providing a beautiful backdrop for a stroll.

Portsmouth, New Hampshire

The charming coastal city of Portsmouth was originally settled in 1623 as Strawbery Banke, and its colonial legacy lives on at the Strawbery Banke Museum. This 10-acre living history exhibit proudly displays houses, gardens, shops and taverns from the 1600s and 1700s. In fact, the whole town is full of colonial, Federal, Georgian and Victorian house museums. Modern-day amusements include laid-back pubs serving local craft beer to a lively local music scene.

On the coast

BELUGA WHALE NALUARK AT MYSTIC AQUARIUM
GETTY IMAGES

Mystic, Connecticut

Halfway between New York City and Boston, Mystic has plenty of coastal attractions. The historic town is home to Mystic Seaport, the world's largest maritime museum with over 500 vessels, including the last remaining whale ship in the world.

At the Mystic Aquarium, you can see New England's only beluga whales, plus penguins, seals, sea lions and plenty of other aquatic animals. Embrace the kitschy side of town at the Olde Mistick Village, where you'll find souvenirs and homemade fudge at Franklin's General Store.

Fall preview.
Get a sneak peek at these comfy and cute clothes for kids.

Kings of Cole launches adorable kids' line

Kings of Cole was founded in 2010 to give people the option of wearing comfy lounge wear while still looking chic. They won customers over with their touch-me fabrics and cool, casual looks. Now, the brand is extending that fashion philosophy to kids' clothes.

Launching this fall, boys and girls will get to wear the same cool styles as their parents: acid-wash hoodies, camo leggings and lounge wear with fun graphics. All the styles can be dressed up or down, so kids can wear them to school and out on the playground. Get your first look at the pieces here.

The new kids' collection will be available starting in August at KingsofCole.com.

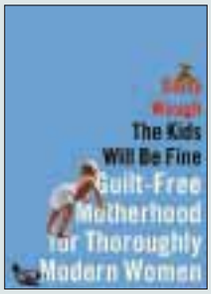
Parenting by the book

From how not to raise a spoiled brat to sounding knowledgeable in a conversation with your teen about "Divergent," these three new releases provide a handy cheat sheet to the whole parenting thing.



'The Kids Will Be Fine: Guilt-Free Motherhood for Thoroughly Modern Women'

Through funny yet informed essays, writer Daisy Waugh argues that you don't have to pre-chew your toddler's food or spend thousands of dollars on the best preschool in your city for your child to turn out OK. The takeaway is that kids are pretty darn resilient, and although of course you want to help them grow into responsible, caring adults, you don't have to obsess over it.

'Permission to Parent: How to Raise Your Child with Love and Limits'

If you want to give your child everything a young heart desires without turning him or her into a spoiled brat, this is the parenting guidebook for you. Psychiatrist Robin Berman advises parents on how to strike a healthy balance between excessive praise or catering to a child's every need and being neglectful or dismissive. It's great for new or not-so-new parents.

'Her Next Chapter'

This is a great book to spark some dialogue about real issues teen girls face, using popular media as the conversation starter. Author Lori Day offers up movies and books to watch and read with your daughter, plus some questions about issues that matter, such as gender stereotypes, sexism, bullying and relationships. Expect a mix of buzzy books and movies you'll both be excited to get into that will help you become closer than ever.

New data. 'Noah' ousts 'Jacob' as the most popular name

Noah and Sophia top 2013's list of the most common baby names in the United States, the U.S. Social Security Administration says.

Last year, 21,075 baby girls were named Sophia and 18,090 baby boys were named Noah. Emma and Olivia trailed close behind for most popular girls' names, while Liam and Jacob took up the respective second and third spots among boys.

Jacob has long dominated the boys' name category, ranking as the most popular every year from 1999 to 2012. It slipped to third in 2013. Last year marked the first time that neither Michael nor Jacob took the top spot since 1960.

Sophia has been the most popular girls' name since 2011, with the top spot last held by Isabella in 2010.

The data comes from some 4 million social security card applications across the United States up through February 2014, the agency says. Data is limited to United States births where birth year, sex and birth state are known and for babies with names longer than two characters.

Over the past century, Michael has been the most popular boys' name, ranking first 44 times, and Mary has been the most common girls' name, with 42 first place finishes.

The agency began publishing the baby names listing in 1998 and releases the rankings shortly before Mother's Day every year. See the box to the right for a list of the most popular names of 2013.

The activity that puts pregnant women at risk

New study. How to avoid putting yourself and your baby in danger.

It's better to let someone else do the driving when you're expecting. / COLOURBOX

Being pregnant can — and rightly so — get you out of a lot of things. Don't feel like going to a dinner party? Late for work? Your oven bun is the perfect excuse. Now, there's another thing it can help you get out of: driving. According to a new study, pregnant women have more car crashes than their nonpregnant peers.

The study compared the number of car crashes women had during their pregnancies with the number they had before and after they were pregnant.

The women were monitored for four years; researchers concluded that most of the crashes occurred while they were pregnant.

Published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, one of the reasons researchers think pregnant women are more at risk for involvement in crashes is due to "pregnancy brain," or foggy thinking.

Women who experience "pregnancy brain" often momentarily forget how to do something that is usually routine for them, or they might zone out temporarily.

But despite the risk, the study notes that young men have more crashes than women, period. Statistically, your safest bet is to rely on a female friend or mom to drive you.

Horoscope

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Appearances can be deceiving. Refrain from making an important decision until you have all the details.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Gain some insight about who you and your associates are. Start a dialogue about your past, and urge others to share theirs.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Finding the right balance can be difficult. Look for the best way to manage your time effectively so you don't fall behind. Being too proud to ask for help will be your downfall.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Someone you care deeply about needs attention. Make an effort to show gratitude and affection.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. If something has been bothering you, take action. Get professional advice or consider taking a break from whatever is causing you stress.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. It's time to move forward in your personal life. Face up to emotional issues and decide what is right for you. Reconnect with an old friend.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Check out an opportunity to advance from your current position. You'll move ahead in the long run.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Favorable attention will come your way today. Your talent and charm are a winning combination. A decision that you've been avoiding can be dealt with.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. You will need to make an extra effort to get along with others today. Use tact with someone who is feeling sensitive and insecure.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Get together with someone for an enjoyable outing. Be honest about the way you feel. Open communication will help.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Work changes are imminent. This is a good time to go for interviews. You may consider starting your own business.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. You may be caught in an emotional whirlwind. If you find matters too confusing, back away from the situation to give yourself time. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Letters

Elect Clinton for historical significance

Nothing angers me more than when people in the media compare that mediocre Jeb Bush to the great Hillary Clinton. First of all, the Bushes are a political dynasty; the Clintons are not. The Clintons are a team. The dictionary definition of a dynasty is a family of rulers who rule over a country for a long period of time. There have been four generations of Bushes and one generation of Clintons. Hillary Clinton has been the most dominant political figure of the last 20 years (and that includes her husband). How many books or covers of magazines has Jeb Bush appeared on? Hillary Clinton is one of the most famous women in the world and the most respected woman in the United States. The only time Jeb Bush achieved national prominence is when he used Nazi tactics to steal the presidency for his worthless dim-witted brother. Otherwise, very few people know who Jeb Bush is on a national level. Unlike Hillary, there is no grassroots support for Jeb Bush except among the media and the donor class. If Hillary Clinton was elected president, it would be a milestone in U.S. election history because electing the first female president and breaking that glass ceiling would be historic.

CLOSING TIME

The trade for Martin St. Louis from Tampa Bay paid off in overtime of Game 4. / GETTY IMAGES

NHL playoffs.
The Rangers have a chance to close out the conference finals in Game 5 on Tuesday night.

The Rangers made a habit of playing a man down in Game 4. Overtime win aside, they'd like to play with five players on the ice in Game 5.

The Blueshirts have a chance to clinch their first trip to the Stanley Cup Finals since 1994 Tuesday night on the road in Montreal. But they'll have to be more disciplined to do so.

"We were definitely undisciplined," Carl Hagelin said after the Game 4 win. "We took a few too many tripping and high-sticking calls. The refs are always going to call those. We have got to play smarter in [Game 5] but we did a great job on the [penalty kill]."

The Canadiens were on the power play eight times for more than 14 minutes of game time. And the Rangers allowed just one score, tempered by a short-handed goal of their own by Hagelin.

The Rangers are 12-1 all time in series in which they lead 3-1. But that one loss came fairly recently — in 2009 against the Capitals. There aren't a lot of players remaining from that team, but Henrik Lundqvist started in net and Marc Staal and Dan Girardi were also regulars.

A veteran-laden squad should also help out with any fears over the Rangers taking it easy and letting the series slip away. After all, they were just on the other side of a 1-3 deficit against the Penguins.

"I remember sitting in here down 3-1 against Pittsburgh," Brad Richards said. "They will feel bad [Sunday], but [Tuesday] they will wake up in front of their home crowd and once that game starts, 3-1, you throw that out the window and it is back in the battle again."

It's no surprise the players would repeat the "one game at a time" mantra, though.

"We are obviously up 3-1, but we know how that can turn if we don't do the things we need to do," Hagelin said. "Our focus now is on the next game."

The schedule

The Rangers have jumped out to a 3-1 lead in the series.

- Game 1: Rangers 7, Canadiens 2
- Game 2: Rangers 3, Canadiens 1
- Game 3: Canadiens 3, Rangers 2
- Game 4: Rangers 3, Canadiens 2 (OT)
- Game 5: at Canadiens, Tuesday, 8 p.m., NBCSN
- Game 6: at Rangers, May 29, 8 p.m., NBCSN
- Game 7: at Canadiens, May 31, 8 p.m., NBCSN

Quoted

"You just have to keep the same mindset that you had for the first four or five games. You don't think about what's ahead."

Stepan travels, status unknown

Derek Stepan traveled with the team to Montreal for Game 5, but it still appears unlikely the forward will play.

Stepan broke his jaw on a hit by Brandon Prust in Game 3 and did not attend Game 4. Head coach Alain Vigneault didn't count out Stepan entirely, though.

"I couldn't say right now," Vigneault told reporters at Monday's media availability. "I have no idea."

Canadiens goalie Carey Price actually skated with his teammates Monday, but is still ruled out for the rest of the series. METRO

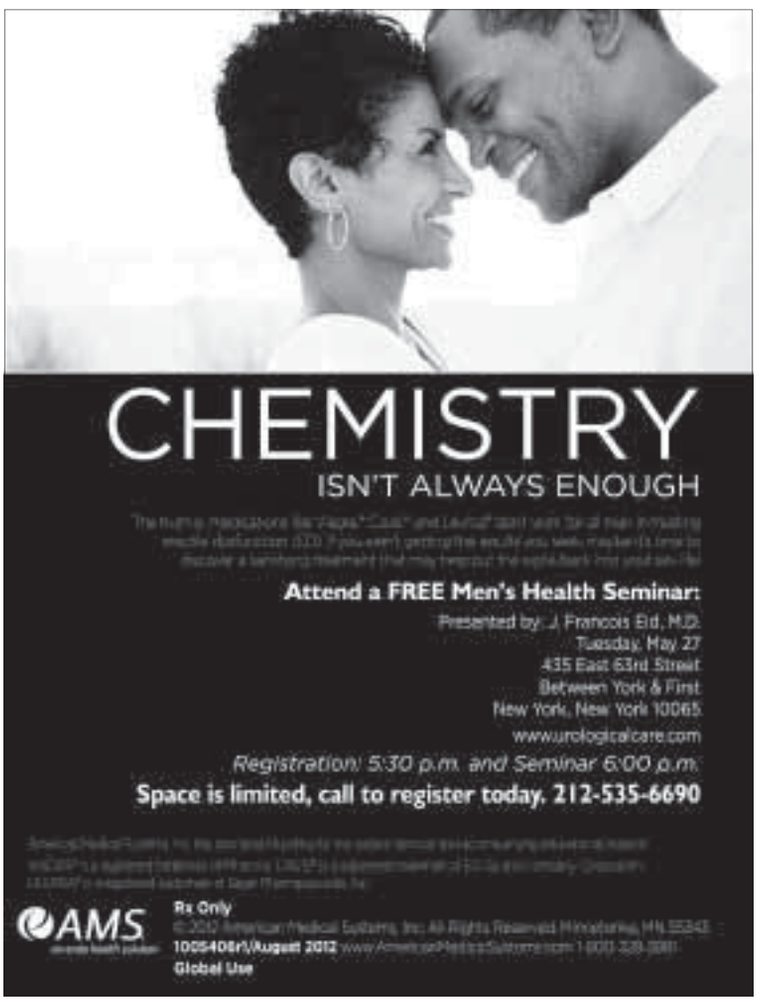
Sox snap 10-game slide

The Red Sox finally came back to the land of the living with an 8-6 win over Atlanta on Monday. The Sox, who hadn't won since May 14, came back from a five-run deficit thanks in part to a David Ortiz three-run homer to tie the game at 6-6.



Hill talks growth, literal and mental, in offseason

NFL. Jets receiver Stephen Hill has been a target of complaining fans, but he says he's improved.

Stephen Hill had just one reception in his final four games before shutting it down for the season with a knee injury. / GETTY IMAGES

Stephen Hill says he's spent this offseason growing as a football player. But physically, the Jets wide receiver is still growing too.

The wide receiver looked to be improving during last season's training camp after a rookie season marred by mistakes and dropped passes. He was drafted as a raw wide receiver out of an option offense at Georgia Tech, and he was supposed to grow by leaps and bounds in his second season. But the results were mixed for Hill.

Part of the problem was a knee injury which ended his season after his strong start.

"I've been working hard this offseason — working hard to make sure I stay healthy, getting my legs stronger, squatting more than I have in two years now," Hill told Metro New York. "It's getting better. [I'm] just happy to be back here, getting back to OTAs."

Due to last year ending with a whimper, it is easy to think Hill regressed in his second season. But in the first three games of 2013, he had 13 receptions for 233 yards and a touchdown. Then, his form tapered off, including a three-game stretch during the middle of the year where he was booed and criticized by Jets fans for failing to register one catch.

Of course, during that three-game drought he also wasn't targeted.

But even though he went through a down stretch and ended the season early with a knee injury, Hill still registered more catches and receiving yards in 2013 than during his rookie year.

Now he heads into this pivotal offseason needing to prove himself again with the free-agent additions of Eric Decker and Jacoby Ford. He has spent the past few months getting stronger and rehabbing, but also improving his technique. He didn't drop many passes last year, but he struggled to find separation against elite cornerbacks.

Hill's grown as a player, but grown literally as well.

"Well physically, I grew an inch-and-a-half the past few months," Hill said. "I am just 23. I was 6-foot-3 and some change. Now [I am] over 6-foot-4 — definitely added some muscle as well."

Stephen Hill developed a reputation for dropping passes as a rookie, when he dropped five passes on 47 targets — the sixth-worst drop percentage by players with over 40 targets. But he dropped just one pass on 58 targets last season.

Mets part ways with hitting coach, Valverde after Pirates loss

The Mets lost 5-3 to the Pirates in a Memorial Day matinee, but it was the names left by the wayside who made the bigger news.

Hitting coach Dave Hudgens, in his fourth season with the Mets, was fired after the loss.

The Mets led 2-0 entering the ninth, until Scott Rice and Jose Valverde blew the lead. Valverde, whose ERA rose to 5.66 after Monday's loss, was released after the game. METRO
